Shelley's Virgin Mary
Shelley's Virgin Mary (1819) is a poem that is often considered one of his most important works. It is a dramatic monologue in which the Virgin Mary speaks to her son, Jesus, after his crucifixion. The poem is written in a simple, direct style, and it is often praised for its emotional power and its depiction of the Virgin Mary as a strong, independent woman.

The first big grant was awarded in the form of $400,000 in 1980 to "test" the procedure in a small town. The town was chosen because it was a good example of a small town that was in need of a new water supply.

25-centavo Church fund grows to P5M

By Maecia S. Rana

FROM a tiny seed a giant tree grew. From 25 centavos a fund now topping P5 million has been collected.

The Archbishop of Manila's Push to Plant a development program consisting on donations of as little as 25 centavos to support anti-poverty initiatives of non-governmental organizations, now has P5 million in its coffers.

Manila Archbishop Gaudencio Rosales said the P5P was able to make the amount only five months after it was launched by the archdiocese last June.

He said he expected donations to pour in this Christmas season because people are more generous at this time.

"There are many who understand that helping others is possible even if you have little. Even the children give their 25 cents," Rosales told reporters last interview Saturday.

He said the P5P was a way of helping those who were not being helped by the government.

"We will help the people that what they are looking for. We will teach them that what little we all have when put together will go a long way," Rosales said.

The P5P which was inspired by the Push to Plant Batajan, that Rosales successfully established in Bataan when he was archbishop of Lipa, was launched on June 11.

Born of the biblical story of the centurion that fell from the sick man's table, the P5P urges people to donate as little as 25 centavos to their parishes, which in turn will remit the collection to the archdiocese of Manila.

NPA captive's child begs Reds for info

By Christian V. Espenra

A DAUGHTER of the military intelligence officer who has been held captive by the New People's Army for more than three years is not about to give up trying to get him back.

Rosemarie Ruano, daughter of Army Sgt. Jeremias Ruano, has written to no less than 140 journalists, imploring the chair of the National Democratic Front to free her father.

"Three years, I think, is already enough," she said in the letter dated Oct. 30. "We are negotiating before but with no good result."

At the very least, Rosemarie asked journalists to verify if her father had changed loyalty from the Armed Forces of the Philippines to the communist movement, as claimed by the AFP in explaining its difficulty in locating Ruano.

"The AFP said that my father has already joined your group but we don't believe this report," she said.

"That is why I am asking for your help to give us information about him. We need to know his condition."

Rosemarie reminded Delarosa that Silverio Bello III, chief government negotiator in the peace process with the NPA, had said that the government was willing to work on Ruano's release.

The effort rests on whether the military spy was "with the government" or had joined the Vladimir Palomina Command, the 59th unit that seized him and three civilians again on Sept. 4, 2001.

"We need a letter, picture or videos of my father as well as the other captives proving that they are still alive," Rosemarie said.

In a previous interview with the Inquirer, Bello said the government could not make a move until the NPA clarified the status of Ruano.

TWO DAYS after weather experts announced that the storm had begun enveloping a mild El Niño, tropical depression "Uding" entered the Philippines promising to deliver much-needed rains for parched areas in Eastern Visayas and Basil.

Abstract

It is often useful to consider a molecule with an n -fold axis of symmetry. For example, a molecule with a C_{2v} symmetry has a C_2 axis and two σ_v planes. The C_2 axis is the axis of symmetry, and the σ_v planes are the planes of symmetry. The C_2 axis is the axis of symmetry, and the σ_v planes are the planes of symmetry.

Court employee sues judge for sexual harassment

By [Name] and [Name]

NEW YORK (AP) — A court employee has filed a lawsuit against a judge, alleging sexual harassment. The lawsuit was filed in federal court in New York City.

The employee, [Name], 35, is a court clerk for Judge [Name], 55, who presides over the Southern District of New York. The lawsuit alleges that Judge [Name] made inappropriate comments and advances toward the employee over a period of several years.

Judge [Name] denies the allegations, stating that the employee's claims are unfounded. He claims that the employee is a "liar" and that the lawsuit is an attempt to "destroy his reputation."

The lawsuit is the latest in a series of sexual harassment cases involving judges in the Southern District of New York. In 2008, a judge was forced to resign after being accused of sexual harassment by a court employee. In 2007, a judge was accused of sexual harassment by a court employee, but the case was dismissed.

The lawsuit is expected to be a lengthy trial. Judge [Name] has asked the court to appoint a special master to investigate the allegations. The court has agreed to the request.

9-mo public sector deficit jumps 25%

By Michelle V. Ranao

THE BUDGET shortfall of the public sector swelled by 25 percent in the first three quarters of the year to P167.31 billion.

This was largely due to the ballooning deficit of distressed government-owned and -controlled corporations or GOCCs.

In the same period last year, the country's consolidated public sector deficit (CPSD) was placed at P133.37 billion.

CPSD is the combined budget deficits of the national government, state-owned companies and local government units. City and municipal governments, however, have been posting surpluses.

The latest deficit figure of P167.31 billion, although higher than year-ago level, was well within the government's projection of P202.52 billion.

Government data show the 9-month CPSD breakdown as follows: P141.91 billion accounted for by the national government; P57.88 billion, monitored GOCCs, and P13.16 billion, cost of the old central bank's restructuring.

These deficits were slightly compensated by the P7.26 billion in gains from adjustments in the net lending to and equity in GOCCs, and from privatization efforts. The public sector also gained from the P38.6 billion in surpluses posted by the LGUs, government educational institutions, and pension funds Social Security Systems and the Government Service Insurance System.

While the national government, trying to enforce fiscal discipline, had approved on its budget position, the GOCCs had a financial performance that left much to be desired. The P141.91 billion in deficit posted by the national government in the first three quarters of this year was a little lower than the P142.7 billion last year. The P57.88 billion budget shortfall registered by the GOCCs was more than double the P22.06 billion they posted last year.

The biggest losers among the GOCCs monitored by the Department of Finance during the period were the National Power Corp., the National Road Authority and the Light Rail Transit Authority.

The government attributed the heavy losses of state-owned firms to several factors, including inefficiencies in collection, insufficient corporate funds for operations, maintenance of lasting liabilities, and charters that lacked flexibility in raising revenues.

The fiscal burden caused by state-owned firms was the reason the national government was planning to institute reforms that would address problems concerning their management.

The DOF has tapped a consultant to work on establishing a scorecard system for GOCCs. Under the system, state-owned companies would be assigned working targets and they would be rewarded or penalized based on their performance as against these targets.

The DOF has also called for the removal of provisions in the GOCC charters that required the national government to automatically guarantee their loans in case of default.

The Senate has also called for an inquiry on the management of losing GOCCs, including the handling of their liabilities.

Sulu now open for business

I WAS impressed with the list of guests and names that spoke-business people, government leaders, diplomats and heads of donor agencies. All of them trooped to Political Sulu, last Oct. 12-13 for the 3rd Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) Business Congress. It was certainly surprising to see the once troubled province attract so many movers and shakers who pledged their support to help Muslim Mindanao achieve its full potential as an investment haven.

Much of Sulu's new vigor can be attributed to its businessman-governor and my good friend Ben Loong who owns one of the province' most successful enterprises, the Su Crion Mall which may soon become a "regional economic zone." Sulu, is now working upwards to the world that it is now ready for business and investments.

Echoing other local leaders, Gov. Loong stressed that the pockets of violence in Sulu is more often blown out of proportion by mass media. ARMM Gov. Parook Mamas, a Sulu native, said the conduct of the congress and the number of foreign guests proved that Sulu and the rest of the ARMM can be a viable business destination. Last year, ARMM posted a crime rate of only 2.8 percent per 100,000 people—the lowest across the country.

Sec. Jess Duran, chair of the Mindanao Economic Development Council (Medeco), urged the private sector to help reduce barriers to investments like the high system loss and low revenue collection among the region's electric cooperatives. We all know that dependable power supply will ~~remain~~ be a major concern of business.

An inspiring moment was when ~~James~~ Perrine, a long time Mindanao resident, and chair of Chuquitar Unifrutas Philippines, exporter of Mindanao bananas and pineapple to many parts of the world, "spoke from the heart" about his "leap of faith" in 1996 when he chose to invest in Davao Paglas, Maguindanao. Perrine said he had never intended to invest in Muslim Mindanao because of perceived risks but his meeting with Mayor Ibrahim "Dito" Paglas changed his mind. In the end, says Perrine, it's not about money, markets or technology, it's about making people and "having a personal relationship."

provement activities in the ARMM since 1995, emphasized the need to improve the region's educational system to cope with the growing demands of business. ARMM may soon run out of employable people if the educational system doesn't improve. He pointed out that the region's local governments spend far too little of their share of property taxes on education. There is a critical need for greater investment in education and developing human resources.

Narciso Bendita, chair of the ARMM Business Council (ABC), which spearheaded the business congress, presented the council's resolutions urging President Arroyo to appoint a representative of the ABC to the forthcoming GRP-MILF peace talks. They also called for the re-establishment of Islamic banking, improvement of power supply and telecommunication system in the ARMM, upgrading of seaports and reduction of inter-island shipping rates, and reforms in education. They committed to provide technical training in food processing and product packaging for small businesses.

We now see a more empowered private sector that is ready to do its role in creating small ripples of change that may soon result in an environment where businesses, big or small, will thrive. Where families, mothers and children can live peacefully in their homes.

Clearly, things are beginning to hum in Muslim Mindanao and that alone it's business that is sounding the clarion call.

As we celebrate EID-UL-FITR today, which is the Muslim Holiday breaking the fast of the Blessed Month of Ramadan, we pray that Mindanao and the rest of the country be showered with the blessings of Allah today and always. Eidul Fitr al Mubarak.

functions by 2 percentage points.

Despite the government's fragile fiscal position, robust private consumption fueled by election spending and higher usage of cellular phones also allowed the economy to grow by 6.2 percent in the second quarter from a year ago.

This brought the first-semester annual gross domestic product growth to 6.3 percent compared to only 4.5 percent in the same period last year. The government is targeting a 4.9-5.6-percent GDP growth this year.

Multilateral institutions, such as the Asian Development Bank and International Monetary Fund, have upgraded their growth outlook for the country this year.

Although the US Federal Reserve Open Market Committee (FOMC) had raised key interest rates four times so far this year to 2 percent, the BSP is confident the US and local rates differential remains "comfortable."

In the meantime, American Express Bank expects the US Fed to raise rates again at its December meeting, though "it is probably a closer call than the markets have currently factored in."

"The Fed made only minor changes to the FOMC statement that accompanied Wednesday's 25-basis point hike in rates, sounding more upbeat on the growth outlook but still expecting inflation to stay low," Amen said in its weekly report.

It said the Fed tightening should continue in 2005, raising the Fed funds rate to 3.5 percent by yearend.

"In US, data point to the economy continuing to perform reasonably well in 2005, despite less monetary and tax support. Job creation is improving and consumer confidence is up, helping to underpin retail sales. Spending should stay supported in 2005, helped also by falling oil prices and rising house prices," Amen said.

For its part, the BSP said that domestic monetary tightening might be inevitable if US Fed rates hit 4 percent next year.

Figure 1 consists of eight subplots arranged in a 4x2 grid. The rows represent different experimental conditions: 'No feedback', 'Feedback', 'No feedback + feedback', and 'Feedback + feedback'. The columns represent different measures: 'Number of correct responses' and 'Number of correct responses (normalized)'. Each plot shows a series of data points with error bars, generally showing an increase in correct responses as the number of trials increases. The x-axis for all plots is 'Number of trials' (ranging from 0 to 100). The y-axis for the left column is 'Number of correct responses' (ranging from 0 to 100) and for the right column is 'Number of correct responses (normalized)' (ranging from 0 to 1.0). The plots show that the 'Feedback + feedback' condition generally results in the highest number of correct responses, followed by 'Feedback', 'No feedback + feedback', and 'No feedback'.

The marquees are alive on West End

When the industry started to look for ways to make the theatre more profitable, the focus was on the stage. But now, with the rise of the internet and social media, the focus is on the marquee.

London's theatre scene has been hit hard by the recession, with many theatres closing their doors. But now, with the rise of the internet and social media, the focus is on the marquee.

Although the focus has shifted to the marquee, the industry is still looking for ways to make the theatre more profitable.

One way to do this is by using the marquee to attract more attention to the theatre.

Another way is by using the marquee to promote the theatre's productions.
